

NEWS OF THE MORNING.

There is more talk about overland competition.

Cork and Kilkenny are proclaimed under the Arms Act.

Three Star route contractors have been arrested in Philadelphia.

The Nihilists call upon the Russian army to rise and strike down the tyrants.

Three children were killed by lightning at Winona, Minn., on Friday afternoon.

Thurman and Davis will visit England to confer with the authorities on the currency.

It is denied that Sullivan has written to Parnell disclaiming any longer to acknowledge the latter's authority as leader of the Home Rulers.

Another Republican caucus will be held to-morrow. The prevailing opinion is that it will agree to take up and confirm Robertson at once.

One of the President's personal friends is authority for the statement that the President is quite anxious, so far as there is any let up of existing pressure, to consider some practical and speedy plan of dealing with the Mormon question.

Woodford and Payne, of New York, are in Washington with the view of separating themselves from the Robertson fight if possible and securing the position for which they were nominated. Should Robertson be confirmed next week, as is very generally believed he will, it is said the President will renominate the men he withdrew. It is now claimed that a majority of the Commerce Committee will vote to report Robertson favorably. One member who was counted with Conkling now declares himself the other way.

The general opinion expressed by those who have paid close attention to the question is that Robertson will get at least two-thirds of the votes, and all indications sustain this. President Garfield has said to Democratic Senators that he could only expect fair treatment from them, and he asked no more. The Administration has not made overtures or appeals to Democrats. Much has been said about Garfield hurting his chances for a second term, but it can be stated that he is not worrying over that. He is simply desirous of making his first term what he promised in his inaugural.

RAILROAD TAXES.

The Illinois Legislature has passed the bill taxing the railroad companies of the State 2½ per cent. on their gross earnings. It is thought a much better way than the method of taxing them on their property, whose value it is difficult to determine. The estimated product of the tax is $1,000,000 a year. The Illinois Central, the largest and most important line of road in the State, is not included in the arrangement, as under its charter it has always paid 7 per cent. of its gross earnings to the State.—Eureka Sentinel.

In view of the difficulties attending the regulations of fares and freights on railroads in this State, the writer of this had a bill prepared at the last session of the Legislature which had for its object the same thing as is stated in the above has been done in Illinois. On account of other matters it was never introduced. But we believe that the plan is a good one, and should be adopted, and before the next session of the Legislature we hope to see the matter discussed from constitutional and policy standpoints.

Dr. Lenz, in a recent lecture at Paris on his journey from Morocco to Timbuctoo, has been correcting some of the generally received notions as to the condition of the Sahara. It really forms a great plateau, about 1,100 feet above the level of the Atlantic. In no part of this plateau is there to be found that depression below the level of the ocean which is shown on the maps of certain geographers, and which has led to wild schemes of converting the Sahara into a great inland sea. Moreover, the Sahara is not one dead sandy level, but is really greatly varied in its aspect. Rocks are succeeded by sandy plains, here and there are oases covered with alfalfa, and stagnant shallow sheets of water. The fresh water fountains, which are met with in many parts, show that the Sahara is not the bottom of a dried up sea. Again, the temperature is not nearly so hot as might be expected. In short, the Sahara is not so bad as it has been called, wild beasts are rare, and the most formidable enemies to be met with are the Touareg tribes, who according to report, recently massacred the French Trans-Saharan Expedition. As to Timbuctoo, Dr. Lenz found he had to traverse a great space covered with ruins before he could reach the inhabited part. There are now only 40,000 inhabitants, but many schools and rich libraries.

The yield of the Idaho mine for the month of April was $51,000, from which a dividend of $7 50 per share, amounting to $23,250 has been declared. This is the 141st regular dividend, making an aggregate amount of $2,938,800 out of a gross product of $6,400,188.

YORKTOWN — FRANCE'S PROPER PARTICIPATION.

The eloquent letter of President Grevy to President Garfield, accepting the invitation to participate in the Yorktown celebration calls to mind the relations existing between the two countries in the old revolutionary days, and which were so strikingly illustrated at the memorable battle, the centennial anniversary of which it is so proper and right for France to join us in celebrating. But for the aid Louis XVI and France rendered the American patriots during our revolution we might still be under British rule. Not that we would, however, and yet we must confess that the glorious event would have been postponed for many years, had it not been for the men and money and Lafayette and Rochambeau furnished us by France, and while relating some of the facts therewith connected, it will be absolutely necessary, in order that the aid thus rendered can be fully appreciated, for us to recite a number of incidents indelibly associated with the struggle for the freedom of America. Even before the immortal Declaration of Independence had been proclaimed, the French ministry was divided on the subject of American affairs. M. Turgot inclined toward neutrality. "Let us leave the insurgents," he said, "at full liberty to make their purchases in our ports, and to provide themselves by the way of trade with the munitions, and even the money, of which they have need. A refusal to sell them would be a departure from neutrality. But it would be a departure likewise to furnish them with secret aid in money, and this step, which it would be difficult to conceal, would excite just complaints on the part of the English." Upon the advice of M. de Vergennes this policy was adopted. But Beaumarchais pleaded the American cause with so much success, sure, he said of its ultimate triumph, that on the 10th of January, 1776, M. de Vergennes secretly remitted a million to him, and two months later, a similar sum to supply the insurgent Americans with arms and ammunition. "You will find," he had been told, "a great commercial house, and you will try to draw into it the money of private individuals, the first outlay being now provided, we shall have no further hand in it, the affair would compromise the government too much in the eyes of the English." It was under the style and title of Rodrigue, Hortalez & Co., that the first installment of supplies, to the extent of more than three millions, was forwarded to the Americans, and, notwithstanding the hesitation of the ministry and the rage of the English, other installments soon followed. "I never should have succeeded in fulfilling my mission here without the indefatigable, intelligent and generous efforts of M. de Beaumarchais," wrote Silas Deane, from Paris, to the secret committee of Congress. "The United States are more indebted to him, on every account, than to any other person on this side of the ocean." Our beloved Franklin joined Deane about this time, and negotiations proceeded more expeditiously and favorably, and from roundabout aid the French Government soon came to remitting money straight to the agents of the United States, but Royalist at heart as he was, Louis refused the many requests to serve in the American army, and a number concluded they did not care about his permission, the most important and illustrious of whom was the young Marquis of Lafayette, who slipped away from Paris, and landed on our soil in July, 1777. Washington had no love for France or Frenchmen. "No bond but interest attaches these men to America," he would say, "and, as for France, she only lets us get our munitions from her, because of the benefit her commerce derives from it." But after awhile he learned to desire the alliance and the aid of France, and she did not belie his hopes. At the very moment, says history, when Congress was refusing to enter into negotiations with Great Britain, as long as a single English soldier remained on American soil, rejoicings and thanksgivings were everywhere throughout the thirteen colonies greeting the news of the recognition by France of the independence of the United States—the treaties of alliance, a triumph of diplomatic ability on the part of Franklin, had been signed at Paris on the 6th of February, 1778. Many a time during that memorable struggle did Washington watch and wait for auxiliaries from France, many a time did Americans and French vie with each other in courage. In 1780 the situation, however, was desperate, and successive revolts among the troops of Pennsylvania, which threatened to spread to those of New Jersey, convinced the General-in-Chief that America had come to the end of her resources, and Washington wrote to Col. Lawrence, in a letter intended to be communicated to Louis XVI. "The country's own powers are exhausted; single-handed we cannot restore public credit and supply the funds necessary for continuing the war. The patience of the army is at an end; the people are discontented; without money, we shall make but a feeble effort, and probably the last." The appeal was not disregarded. Several thousand men were sent immediately, and in a few months King Louis had lent to the United States, or procured for them on his security, sums exceeding sixteen million livres. It was to Washington personally that the French Government confided its troops as well as its subsidies. Our cause at last triumphed with the capture of Cornwallis, at the close of the Fall campaign of 1781. The sword was tendered to Count de Rochambeau, but he stepped back, and pointing toward General Washington, said aloud: "I am only an auxiliary." It was not until 1783 that George III. and his government recognized the independence of the American colonies. The preliminaries of a general peace had been signed at Paris on the 20th of January.

GOLD MOUNTAIN.

The Coming District of Southwest-ern Nevada.

The True Fissure is permitted to take the following extracts from a private letter written by a person at Gold Mountain to a friend in Candelaria.

Interested parties here say the camp will rival Virginia and Bodie in a short time. The ledge of the State line mine is twelve feet wide, with an unlimited quantity of ore in sight—enough to wear out an eight-stamp mill. The ore will average $25 per ton, and is free milling gold. No amalgamating pans will be needed, as copper plates will suffice. The State Line Mining Company has located 160 acres of land under the desert land act. Outside of this tract the whole country is located and held by "stuffs" who imagine their future is brilliant.

Board at the restaurant is at the rate of $2 per day or $9 per week. There are two stores and one saloon, while a number of the latter are in course of construction. Drinks are two bits, water ten cents a gallon, or $4 a barrel, delivered; $1 at the spring, six miles distant. There is a report current that some parties who are building a toll-road have struck water within two and a half miles of town, but the truth of this I can not vouch for. Ham sells here at 40 cents per pound, bacon, 30, beans, 16, sugar, 33, hay, 4, barley, 10, pool lumber, $110 per thousand. Everything else is in the same ratio as to price, so you can judge what a nice place this is for a man to strike when he is broke.

I can not encourage any of the boys to come here at present, as all locations are gobbled up. Every move goes to show that wages will be low here, and that is an essential item to take into consideration.

Governor Kinkead thinks the scheme to take water into Candelaria will be a big success. The mines of that district are known to contain vast deposits of ore that will mill from $20 to $40 per ton. Under the present system these ores have to be hauled seven miles to Belleville, where $20 a ton is the price charged for reducing them. This leaves a small margin for profit. When water is introduced Candelaria will be the liveliest camp on the Pacific coast. The project is in the hands of a strong New York company, with which Governor Kinkead is associated.

THE RAILROAD PROBLEM.

The Overshadowing Influence of Great Monopolies.

[Atlantic Monthly for March.]

When Commodore Vanderbilt began the world he had nothing, and there were no steamboats or railroads. He was 35 years old when the first locomotive was put into use in America. When he died, railroads had become the greatest force in modern industry, and Vanderbilt was the richest man of Europe or America, and the largest owner of railroads in the world. He used the finest business brain of his day and the franchise of the State to build up a kingdom within the Republic, and like a King he bequeathed his wealth and power to his eldest son. Bancroft's History of the United States and our railroad system were begun at the same time. The history is not yet finished, but the railroads owe on stocks and bonds $4,600,000,000, more than twice our national debt of $2,220,000,000, and tax the people annually $490,000,000, one and one-half times more than the Government's revenue last year of $274,000,000. More than any other class, our railroad men have developed the country, and tried its institutions. The evasion of almost all taxes by the New York Central Railroad has thrown upon the people of New York State more than a fair share of the cost of Government, and illustrates some of the methods by which the rich are making the poor poorer.

SINS AGAINST PUBLIC FAITH.

Violations of trust by Credit Mobiliers, Jay Gould's wealth and the poverty of Erie stockholders, such corruption of legislatures as gave the Pacific Mail its subsidies, and nicknamed New Jersey, "The State of Camden and Amboy," are sins against public and private faith on a scale impossible in the early days of republics and corporations. A lawsuit still pending, though begun ten years ago by a citizen of Chicago, to recover the value of baggage destroyed by the Pennsylvania Railroad, is charged before Congress by President Gowan, of the Reading Railroad, the veto by the Standard Oil Company of the enactment of a law by the Pennsylvania Legislature to carry out the provision of the Constitution of the State that every one should have equal rights on the railroads—these are a few of the many things that have happened to kill the confidence of our citizens in the laws and administration of justice.

A BURDEN ON THE PEOPLE.

No other system of taxation has borne so heavily on the people as those extortions and inequalities of railroad charges which caused the granger outburst in the West, and the recent uprising in New York. In the actual physical violence with which railroads have taken their rights of way through more than one American city, and in the railroad strikes of 1876 and 1877, with the anarchy that came with them, there are social disorders we hoped never to see in America. Those incidents in railroad history show most of the points where we fail, as between man and man, employer and employee, the public and the corporation, the State and the citizen, to maintain the equities of "government"—and employment—"of the people, by the people, for the people." Our treatment of "the railroad problem" will show the quality and caliber of our political sense. It will go far in forecasting the future lines of our social and political growth. In many indications whether the American Democracy, like all the Democratic experiments which have preceded it, is to become extinct because the people had not wit enough or virtue enough to make the common good supreme.

Planetary Conjunction.

[BY J W MADRELL.]

The year 1881 will be one of remarkable interest, from an astronomical standpoint, for during that year the planets of our system will reach a point in their orbits not attained, some astronomers tell us, for 6,000 years, while others say that a somewhat similar combination occurred 1800 years ago. The sun is in the center of our system, and around the GRAND COLOSSAL STAR, Which is nearly a million and a half times larger than the earth, about 350,000 times as heavy, revolves all of our planets, each apparently going regardless of all others, and yet all bound together by that mutual attraction commonly called "gravitation." Each planet has an orbit independent of the others, and goes on its journey regardless of what its neighbor may be doing. These orbits differ relatively every month, so that astronomers find it at once fascinating and profitable to figure out the relative positions occupied by each at a given time. To the uninitiated it seems almost miraculous that a "stargazer" should be able to tell just when an eclipse is to occur, but when we consider that the planets move like a majestic clock, each orb going its rounds as a part of the grand celestial mechanism, making just such a distance in such a time, it ceases to be more than a study, which has been mastered by attention and application. Just now

THE HEAVENS Are full of interest, for all the planets are drawing nearer to the point which they are to reach Sunday morning, June 19, 1881, at about three o'clock. At the hour the stars will be in Taurus, and will be in this position

1-Jarth	6-Jupiter
2-Moon	7-Saturn
3-Mercury	8-Neptune
4-Venus	9-Uranus
5-Mars	10-Alicyone
(S)-Sun

By this it will be observed that all of the planets, Uranus alone excepted, will be arrayed with the sun and moon against our little earth. We know what an effect even the moon, small as it is, has on our tides, then what must be the result when so many, aggregating many million times larger than the earth, shall be pulling against it? The possibilities naturally attract us toward Mother Shipton's doleful doggerel, which tells us that the world will come to an end in 1881. Another feature, which should not be overlooked, is this: Directly in range with these planets is Alicyone, or eta Tauri, the central star of the

BEAUTIFUL PLEIADS

This star is said to be the grand center of the universe of worlds we see swinging around us on a clear night, and a few have gone so far as to locate heaven itself on this star. The fact that this star seems to take a hand in tagging at the earth makes it look all the more ominous. Attempts have been made to show that the builders of the Great Pyramid of Egypt had an eye to this conjunction, and that it was so placed that at this particular time Diaconis or Mazzaroth passes the meridian of the entrance passage of this great Pyramid. We know that the Egyptians were great star gazers, and that they knew the heavens like a book, but is it not straining a point to suppose that they had any idea of the grand event? It will not be believed by everybody. This transit marks a quarter era on the celestial dial of the grand precessionary year of our sidereal heavens, which is also indicated by Alicyone, the supposed center. It would take too much space to speculate upon the results of this

REMARKABLE GROUPING

Of the planets, suffice it to say that when they have in times long since past, reached similar positions, dire and wondrous have been the effects upon the earth. During one of these conjunctions the continent Atlantis sank into the Atlantic ocean. At others, many provinces, islands, etc., have suddenly either disappeared beneath the waves, or shot up into being from the briny deep. Volcanoes and geysers become very active, and the whole universe seems to be out of gear. Still, direful as these may appear, it will not be necessary to sell out at a sacrifice and move to New Jersey. Keep right on, and let the stars attend to their affairs, while we attend to ours. But even while we do this, the approach of June 19, 1881, will be watched with interest, and every unusual event will be attributed to it.

SHALL WE LIGHT UP?

Reno and the Electric Light

We suggested the other day the advisability of having the town illuminated at night by the electric light, and mentioned what was being done at Nevada City. A dispatch from there of the 6th shows the result.

To-night the town was for the first time illuminated with the electric light. The result was very satisfactory. Three lamps only were used, being suspended from a temporary scaffold erected upon the roof of the Court house. The lamps threw a bright and steady light and illuminated for a long distance. During the evening the streets presented a lively appearance, throngs of people having come in from the outskirts of the town to get a good look at the wonderful light, which many of them had never seen before. The experiment now being made is done by way of demonstration on the part of the California Electric Light Company to the citizens, to show what the lights will do, as it is necessary to raise $1,000 by private subscription in order to insure its success, the Board of City Trustees having gone to the limit allowed in the charter by appropriating $2,000. There is not now the least doubt about raising $1,000. Six lamps will be put up immediately.

Reno is a growing town, and ought to be lighted at night. We pay an incorporation tax every year, and some of this money can be used for the purpose. There are enough public spirited citizens who will subscribe to the enterprise to make it a go. Is it not worth doing?
